

What is an interface?

An interface is simply the way things interact with each other.

If you took driver education, you were learning how people drive cars using a fairly standard automobile interface. Starting and stopping involved the gas pedal, brake pedal, and the gear shift. Changing direction involved turning the steering wheel, and so on.